SOUNDS OF NATURE

A bird's song is only one type of sound birds make, but it is the most recognizable. Birds have very complex vocalizations, often with more than one tone produced simultaneously, thanks to the specialized syrinx (their equivalent of a voice box) that allows them to create independent sounds in different parts of their trachea. Songs may last 2 to 10 seconds or more and are often repeated in long sequences.

SOUNDS OF NATURE

Colombia is the country with the highest number of bird species. Colombia's rich biodiversity is due to its unique combination of geographic and topographic features unshared by any other country in the region. The variety of ecosystems makes Colombia a paradise for birders. It offers the world and bird lovers a gamut of possibilities for enjoying exceptional natural wealth, embellished by thousands of colors and the songs of birds.
